Ninjutsu book, NetThe present invention generally relates to a test method and apparatus for an a.c. generator. More specifically, the present invention is directed to an apparatus and method for testing an a.c. generator used in a vehicular electrical system. As is known in the art, a vehicular electrical system generally includes an a.c. generator for providing the a.c. voltage to the vehicle upon demand by the vehicle operator. The a.c. generator includes a stator section which is located within a housing, and has at least one winding in a stator core. The stator core includes a plurality of slots, and coils are formed by inserting the coils of wire through the slots of the stator core. The stator core is generally formed by winding separate laminations of magnetic material with a single slot width and a single slot length. The coils are typically wrapped about the magnetic material to provide a stationary structure to form the stator section of the a.c. generator. 82138339de
